

Web Project Table

Your web site must contain at least one HTML table that includes a caption <caption> and table headers <th>.

You must code it for accessibility using the id and headers attributes (see page 380).

You must code some CSS styling for the table that includes at least one CSS3 structural pseudo-class.

To adhere to best practice for a mobile layout, the same information must be coded within a *. When viewed on desktops and tablets, the HTML table must be displayed rather than the unordered list. When viewed on a smartphone, your media query should display the unordered list instead of the HTML table.