

Web Project Styling for Print

Your web site must contain a second CSS file that styles your web page for printing.

Your HTML pages must be linked to this CSS file using the media attribute of the <link> element.

Your printed web page must follow the print styling best practices outlined on pages 320–322. These include:

- Hide banner ads, navigation, and other items not needed in a printout.
- Configure font sizes in terms of pt units.
- Use black text on white background for content. Headers may still be in color.
- Suppress the display of background color and images.
- If needed, properly paginate the printout with page breaks.
- Print actual URLs for hyperlinks within the content.
